A Calculated Risk Taken by Soviet Chief

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is taking a calculated risk in accepting an invitation to visit the United States.

His exchange of visits with President Eisenhower will permit an unusual calm to settle over the main arenas of the cold war for a couple of months. But there is no reason to suppose that peace has broken out.

Khrushchev has long indicated he badly wanted the invitation to America. He maneuvered industriously to get it. But why was he so eager?

Khrushchev's projected few days in Washington and President Eisenhower's in Moscow will be in effect a meeting at the summit, a two-sided meeting with other countries on the outside.

The Western Allies are being reassured and are making noises like they are welcoming the exchange. By the time Khrushchev gets through, they possibly will be wondering what really went on behind closed doors. The idea that Khrushchev is thinking along such lines cannot be discarded for he is known to have entertained a notion of splitting the Allies by hinting at a possible two-way deal to keep the world in its place.

But there is some risk for Khrushchev himself. The same uneasiness he may seek to arouse among the Western Europeans also can be provoked among the Chinese Communists. A Moscow-Washington display of peace, friendship, and all's right with the world can hardly make Peiping sublimely happy.

Red China is in no position to flirt with the idea of world peace. It has too far to go, straining every muscle to make its own revolution succeed. It needs an American enemy.

Coming on top of the obvious failure of the Big Four foreign ministers to agree on Berlin and Germany, the sudden outbreak of exuberant good will might be viewed as an unexpected, highly welcome ray of light.

But the Berlin affair is working out as predicted by those familiar with Soviet ways. Khrushchev issued an ultimatum. To carry through on it would have been a grave risk. To back down would have been awkward. What better solution than to leave the whole matter up in the air while Khrushchev lingers about the United States trying to look like a pigeon of peace?

Search Revived for Missing Plane, Pilot

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—At the request of Gov. Orval E. Faubus, the Arkansas Civil Defense office today renewed a search for a light plane missing since July 27.

The craft was piloted by Dr. Hubert Larson of Columbia, Mo. He left Texarkana for Columbia with only enough fuel for about four hours of flight and has not been heard from since.

An intensive hunt by ground parties and Civil Air Patrol planes in parts of Arkansas, Missouri and Oklahoma failed to discover any trace of the plane.

The search was abandoned last weekend but the physician's wife, a nurse at Texarkana, appealed to Faubus to renew it.

The governor asked Civil Defense Director Owen Payne Jr. of Conway to co-ordinate a new search. Payne arrived in Texarkana last night to set up a search headquarters. He said between 20 and 30 private planes were expected to participate.

A second headquarters was established at Hot Springs. Mrs. Larson told Faubus her 20-year-old husband was an expert woodsman and she thought his chances of surviving any crash were favorable.

The CAP and other state agencies planned to help in the new search, officials said.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Civil Air Patrol officials met today to consider a request from the wife of a missing Missouri pilot to resume a search for the lost flier.

A wide search in western Arkansas by the CAP turned up no trace of the green and white craft piloted by Dr. Hubert H. Larson of Columbia, Mo. Larson took off from Texarkana July 27, bound for Columbia.

Mrs. Larson, a nurse at Texarkana, sent a telegram to Gov. Orval E. Faubus yesterday, asking him to intercede for her with the CAP. An aid to Faubus contacted the agency.

Mrs. Larson said that since her husband was a doctor and an expert woodsman, she thought his chances of surviving a plane crash in the wooded country of western Arkansas were favorable.

The CAP officially called off the search Monday night.

More Time Asked on Integration Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—U.S. District Judge J. Smith Hentley yesterday granted more time for an appeal to be filed on a ruling upholding Act 10 of 1956.

Negro plaintiffs in a suit against the controversial law said they needed more time to prepare the transcript of a hearing on Act 10. The appeal is to be filed with the U.S. Supreme Court. The plaintiffs were given until Sept. 22 to file the appeal. The old deadline was Aug. 25.

Act 10 requires teachers in state-supported institutions to file affidavits listing their organization connections for the past five years. It was upheld as constitutional by a federal court ruling on the suit brought by B.T. Shelton, a Little Rock Negro teacher, and several others.

Pressure on to Make State a University

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A group of east Arkansas legislators has asked Gov. Orval E. Faubus to include university status for Arkansas State College on the agenda of any special legislative session he might call.

The proposal to change the name of the Jonesboro school passed the Senate in the 1955 General Assembly but failed in the House.

State Rep. Norman Wimpy of Craighead County presented a petition at the governor's office yesterday asking that the ASC might be included in a special session. The petition was signed by 17 legislators.

Wimpy said more signatures could have been obtained if there had been time to ask for them.

"We wanted to get the request in before the governor called a special session as we understand he is thinking of doing," Wimpy said.

He also said Faubus would be asked to declare his feelings on the issue later on. The governor took no stand on it during the 1955 session.

The University of Arkansas has opposed the name-change on grounds it would weaken the university, and cut limited funds now available to the university.

Arkansas State has contended it needs university status so it can compete for students with nearby out-of-state universities.

Jailbreakers Meekly Give Up at Ft. Smith

PORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—An all-out manhunt ended today when two weary, hungry jailbreakers surrendered meekly to a state policeman on a highway near Fort Smith.

Edde Weathers, 25, of Fullerton, Calif., and Edwin Kervallis, 17-year-old AWOL soldier obeyed the officer's command to lie down on the road as he approached with a rifle.

The trooper James Cottrell of Huntsville, turned the escaped prisoners over to other officers. They were taken to Cassville, Mo., where they broke out of jail Sunday after stabbing a guard with a pair of scissors.

Scores of sheriff's officers and state policemen had scoured the rugged mountain country between Fort Smith and Fayetteville after the fugitives abandoned a stolen car and fled on foot into heavy woods yesterday.

The men had been armed with a shotgun taken from a Missouri man they held as a hostage for awhile. But they laid the weapon just before their capture. It was recovered along with five shells.

"I'm so worn out," said Weathers. "I didn't really care if I got caught."

Neither man had eaten anything since Saturday. They escaped before breakfast Sunday.

Kervallis, a Latvian refugee, cursed officers who attempted to question him.

Dirty, unshaven, clad in sweat-soaked blue jeans and shirts, the men had left a wooded area on U.S. Highway 71 about five miles north of Mountainburg in a desperate effort to find water.

Cottrell, who had joined scores of other officers in the manhunt, was driving south on the highway about 5 a.m. when he saw the pair sliding down a hill. He stopped his car. Weathers and Kervallis did not see him. They reached the highway and began walking in the opposite direction from the trooper, who was alerting other patrol cars by radio.

Seizing his rifle, Cottrell left his car and yelled for the men to halt. They froze. The trooper ordered them to lie face down on the pavement and they obeyed without a word.

State Police Sgt. Wilbur Hileman arrived within minutes and handcuffed the fugitives. Sheriff Hollis Spencer of Fayetteville put them in his car. Accompanied by Sheriff Bill Hemphill of Cassville, Spencer drove to the Arkansas-Missouri line where Hemphill and the prisoners met Barry County officers and returned to Cassville.

Police said a woman at the Boston Mountain Lodge, a tourist resort, reported finding Kervallis in an empty cabin last night. He fled when she came upon him.

Kervallis indignantly admitted he was in the cabin looking for water, officers said. He also told police that Weathers was waiting outside with the shotgun while he

Alford Case Taken Up by Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Elections Subcommittee resumed today its investigation of the election dispute involving Rep. Dale Alford (D-Ark.).

It scheduled a meeting to consider what to do about 4,000 questioned ballots cast in last November's election in which Alford, an outspoken segregationist, unseated veteran Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.).

Alford, running as a write-in candidate, defeated Hays, a southern moderate, by about 1300 votes.

The subcommittee headed by Rep. Robert T. Ashmore (D-SC) was directed by the parent House Administration Committee to investigate charges of irregularities in the election. Hays has not contested Alford's election.

Earlier the Subcommittee went to Little Rock and examined all ballots cast in the election. It returned with about 4000 questioned ballots.

Ashmore said it will require several closed door sessions of his subcommittee to determine disposition of the ballots.

Two Killed in Wreck Near Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—An automobile accident killed two persons and injured another last night.

State Trooper Darryl Rose said the dead were the Rev. Julian T. Suggs, 73, of Goodman, Mo., and a woman believed to be Suggs' wife. She had no identification.

Warren D. McLaughlin, 60, of Winslow, Ark., whose car collided head-on with the Suggs' auto, was injured and hospitalized here. The impact knocked his car into a 10-foot ditch and pinned him under it.

DOROTHY DIX

Waiting Game Heads Into Extra Innings

Dear Dorothy Dix: I recently became engaged to a man my own age, 25, and a spring wedding has been scheduled. He holds a fair job but has no money saved. The other day he announced his decision to return to school this fall and said he wanted to postpone marriage until he had five hundred dollars saved. What with school expenses and all, this is going to take quite some time. I think we should go ahead with our plans — I'll continue working and he can finish school. He won't agree to this. He didn't even have enough money to buy me an engagement ring. I've come to the conclusion that I should accept other dates. Don't relish the idea of postponing marriage until I'm 30.—Lella

Dear Lella: Your fiancé lacks the ardor of a prospective husband. Apparently he became panic-stricken at the idea of matrimony and took refuge in the arms of learning. It will, indeed, be a long wait until he can face the responsibilities of a family man. Don't waste time; have fun elsewhere.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a girl of 13, fairly pretty, look 16 and some people say I have the maturity of a 16-year-old. Here is my problem. My 18-year-old brother has a friend his age who is cute and has told my brother he likes me. When he comes to the house and gives me a little attention, I flip and am on cloud nine for a week. I know I'm too young for him now but by the time he gets out of high school, does his stint for Uncle Sam, and is ready to settle down, I'll be 16 or 17. How can I get him to wait for me? I'm very popular with kids my own age but they don't interest me. Patsy J.

Dear Patsy: What's the matter with age 17? Nobody wants it except those who can't have it. All 13-year-olds want to look, act and be regarded as 15 or 16. This is a precious year, kids. Enjoy it, don't hope it away. Be a charming 13. Patsy, and your brother's pal may decide to hang around a few years and watch and wait. Sincere affection is usually catching. I have a hunch you'll get your man.

Dear Dorothy Dix: For two years I've been going with a married man of 56. He treats me fine takes me on vacations (telling his wife they are business trips), buys me clothes, has a big car and plenty of money. The only thing I don't like about him is the way he talks about his wife. He runs her down something awful. After all, the have been married for 35 years and I think she deserves better than that. I'm 45 and a divorcee.—Janet

Dear Janet: You object to talk, but not to action. Rather inconsistent, isn't it? You have a strange streak of honor. You know right from wrong and didn't have to waste a four-cent stamp asking me what you should do. The only decent — and, incidentally, wise — thing for you to do is give up the vacations, clothes, big car and spending money. A clear conscience makes a better companion than another woman's husband.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her care of this newspaper.

Berra's Homer Gives American All-Stars Win

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The count stood all square at one apiece for the 1959 All-Star classic between the American and National League today. And back to the formal pennant races went the ballplayers.

Manager Casey Stengel's American League team pinned a 5-3 defeat on Fred Haney's National as paid attendance at 34,962, fourth highest in the game's history, sat through the game in sun-baked Memorial Coliseum Monday.

The victory avenged a 5-4 setback absorbed by the Stengel men in the first All-Star game July 7 at Pittsburgh.

The game grossed $283,120 and netted, after taxes, $262,336.47. The Pittsburgh game grossed $229,636 and netted $191,300.46.

Individual honors went to catcher Yogi Berra of the Yankees, whose two-run blast off Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale put the Americans in front, 3-1, in the third inning for a lead they never relinquished.

Oddly enough, this was Yogi's 11th All-Star appearance but the first time he had hit for extra bases.

Collective honors went to the American League pitchers who throttled such sluggers as Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, and Willie Mays.

The winning pitcher was Jerry Walker of Baltimore, 20, who just a year ago was laboring for Knoxville, Tenn. in the Class A Sally League.

Walker, inserted into the squad the afternoon before, yielded but one run and two hits in the three innings he worked.

The loser was strikeout artist Don Drysdale of the Dodgers. Don served up home runs to Frank Malzone of the Red Sox and Berra.

"This was a great day for the Italians," said Yogi, referring to the home run by Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, in the eighth inning and Malzone's four bagger.

Sharing pitching honors with Walker were Early Wynn, Hoyt Wilhelm, Billy O'Dell and Cal McLish.

For the Nationals, Dodger Jim Gilliam and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati smacked home runs.

The contest, which lasted 2 hours and 42 minutes, had its moments.

One came with the introduction of the All-Stars. It was hard to say which, if either, drew the biggest crowd — big Ted Williams or Stan Musial.

Of course, such Los Angeles idols as Gilliam, Vally Moon, Drysdale and Charlie Neal drew hearty applause. But Williams, in his 10th All-Star game, and Musial in his record 17th were the sentiment heroes.

Malzone's homer came in the second inning, which tied the score at 1-1 after Johnny Temple had doubled in the first, and scored later on Aaron's sacrifice fly.

In the third, Nellie Fox singled and scored in Berra's homer. From there on it was a homer duel, with the Americans leading the way.

Walker of Baltimore, 20, who just a year ago was laboring for Knoxville, Tenn. in the Class A Sally League.

Walker, inserted into the squad the afternoon before, yielded but one run and two hits in the three innings he worked.

The loser was strikeout artist Don Drysdale of the Dodgers. Don served up home runs to Frank Malzone of the Red Sox and Berra.

"This was a great day for the Italians," said Yogi, referring to the home run by Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, in the eighth inning and Malzone's four bagger.

Sharing pitching honors with Walker were Early Wynn, Hoyt Wilhelm, Billy O'Dell and Cal McLish.

For the Nationals, Dodger Jim Gilliam and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati smacked home runs.

The contest, which lasted 2 hours and 42 minutes, had its moments.

One came with the introduction of the All-Stars. It was hard to say which, if either, drew the biggest crowd — big Ted Williams or Stan Musial.

Of course, such Los Angeles idols as Gilliam, Vally Moon, Drysdale and Charlie Neal drew hearty applause. But Williams, in his 10th All-Star game, and Musial in his record 17th were the sentiment heroes.

Malzone's homer came in the second inning, which tied the score at 1-1 after Johnny Temple had doubled in the first, and scored later on Aaron's sacrifice fly.

In the third, Nellie Fox singled and scored in Berra's homer. From there on it was a homer duel, with the Americans leading the way.

Pennant Picture May Show Up in Next Few Days

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that the player pension fund is rolling in crisp All-Star dollars, the athletes can turn their undivided attention to the bread and butter realities of the pennant races.

The National League struggle could be cleared up considerably in the next few days when the third-place Milwaukee Braves visit both the leading San Francisco Giants and the runner-up Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants, clinging to a half game lead over the Dodgers, entertain the Braves for the next three days, starting tonight. Milwaukee then moves on to the Coliseum for two big weekend games.

The two team race in the American League in which Chicago holds a three-game edge over the Cleveland Indians, finds both clubs stepping off on long road trips.

Chicago will play 13 games at Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Kansas City before returning home for the final visit of the Eastern teams. Cleveland will hit the same cities in a different rotation for a total of 14 consecutive road games.

Unless both the White Sox and Indians collapse completely on this journey, they should have things all to themselves the rest of the way. Baltimore and Kansas City, tied for third, are 11 games back, New York in fifth place is 12 games off the pace, and Detroit in sixth trails by 13.

Both races may be won on the schedules of the top teams for the rest of the season shows that Chicago plays 20 of its remaining 52 games away, and the Indians leave 29 of 50 out of town. In the Dodgers' 25 of 47 and the Giants 26 of 50.

For the opener of the big series at San Francisco, Manager Fred Haney is calling on the veteran Warren Spahn, 14-game winner, to oppose young Mike McCormick, who has won 10 games. It will be Willie McCovey, the Giants' sensational new first baseman, who is hitting .500 in four games.

While the Giants and Braves are trying to cut each other's throats, the Dodgers have two seams with a Cincinnati club that seems to have come alive.

As the White Sox and Indians start on their long road trips, an analysis of the standings shows it would be next to impossible for any other club to shoulder its way to the pennant.

Chicago has won 62 games with 52 to go. If they play .500 ball, winning only 26 of the rest, they will have won 88 games. A similar pace by Cleveland in its last 50 games would give them 85 victories.

Baltimore with 48 to go would have to scowl at a 30-12 pace to top Chicago. Kansas City with 52 to go would have to play 38-14 ball New York with 52 to play would need a 39-13 record and Detroit in 48 games would need a 38-10 record to beat Chicago's .500 pace.

A catch-up rally by any of those clubs would mean playing better than .700 ball the rest of the way. Only two of them (Baltimore and the .500 level).

Battle Over Labor Control Bill Looms

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE
WASHINGTON (AP) — A wide-open floor battle over labor control legislation was indicated today as the House Rules Committee called hearings to determine procedure.

Without working over the legislation itself, the committee decides on debate limits, the extent of amendments to be allowed, and ground rules which play a big part in shaping House action on bills.

Before it was a bill approved 16-14 by the House Labor Committee but opposed by many who want it changed on the House floor.

The committee consequently was expected to send the bill to the floor wide-open to amendment to satisfy members who contend it is too weak and needs strengthening, and others who say it is too tough and needs toning down.

The Rules Committee, under pressure to get the bill before the House this week, suspended hearings on other legislation to give it priority.

As it came from the Labor Committee, the measure eased many restrictions of the Senate-passed bill but followed that bill's general pattern.

It would ban "hot cargo" clauses in union contracts and extortion picketing. A modified labor "bill of rights" is included, but without the criminal penalties the Senate voted for violations. The bill would require unions to make extensive financial reports and would require the National Labor Relations Board to take jurisdiction in all labor dispute cases. The board may now decline jurisdiction in small cases, and the states are prohibited from acting.

It strongest and most influential backing came Monday from Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), who declared: "I think it does a splendid job." Rayburn said the Labor Committee bill "covers racketeering in a fine fashion."

But only five of the 30 Labor Committee members had a good word to say for it. The others said it would be too tough on labor, or not tough enough.

THE STORY: Grady Haskell has made a friend of Joe Peele, a derelict in the town of Reservation. As a result Peele prevents a mob of cowhands from beating Grady to death on the town streets. Grady has just identified himself as a deputy sheriff by pinning on his star.

Chapter VIII

Haskell circled to the street once more, crossed and climbed the steps of Milo Jellick's store. Jellick, having opened not long before, had come to the edge of the porch to feel the morning sunshine, and now laid his shrewd glance on Haskell.

"So-o!" he murmured. "I was guessing right all the time."

"You mean — this?" Haskell touched his star.

Jellick nodded. "The law has a way of marking men, depending which side of it they choose to ride upon. I knew by the set of your shoulders and the look in your eye that you were on the right side."

"I seem to have fooled nobody," Haskell said dryly.

"I am, however, admitted Jellick. "A trifle amazed to see you up and around so early and so lively. For I gathered that last night was somewhat rough."

"Rough enough" Haskell's face hardened at the memory. "You see any of it?"

Jellick shook his head. "Time I got there it was all over and you were in your room."

"Decent of you to bother at all," Haskell said gruffly, knowing liking for this retund little storekeeper.

"Wasn't my idea," admitted Jellick. "Katie Levening asked me to check up on you."

"Why, I wonder?"

"Wondered some on that myself," Jellick said. "Wondered too, why Vince Tendler and his crowd should have gangued you?"

"Would Tendler have cause to fear the law?"

"I have heard of no charge against him," Jellick's reply was a little indirect. "He is not an easy one to judge, this Vince Tendler, for there is a great deal of arrogance and quick temper in the man. Now if you had affronted him in some way—?"

"Maybe," said Haskell briefly, recalling the cow and calf wolf incident of yesterday morning. "We had a word or two back and forth. But with hardly enough in them to set him after me." He was silent for a thoughtful moment before adding: "There might be another reason. But it's a long guess, so I'll keep it to myself." He switched to another subject. "When I left here last night I had a caddy of to bacco. Somewhere between here and my room I didn't have it any more. So, I'll need another."

The storekeeper smiled, rescued that tobacco myself. Stumbled across it out in the street."

"They went inside and Jellick handed the caddy down from a shelf. It was battered and smudged with street dust, but still intact. Haskell broke it open and pocketed two of the lightly packed muslin sacks. Nodding his thanks, he fixed his glance on Jellick with a sudden, blunt intensity.

"Friend, I see you as an honest man who believes in the law. Right?"

"I hope I'm all of that," Jellick said slowly. "Why?"

"You can help me. With some straight answers to some straight questions."

"You mean, turn informer?"

"Some might call it so. Sure if they're on the wrong side of the fence. But decent folk would say it was an honest man aiding what he believes in—the law!"

"There could be times when the law is in the wrong."

"Not in this case. Well?"

Milo Jellick considered soberly. "As I said last night, we've undesirables in these hills—perhaps too many of them. I have no use for such and would like to see them cleaned out. On the other hand, we've also some mighty fine people, and I'd never knowingly have a hand in harming any of them."

Haskell made an impatient gesture. "Now there is something I do not understand. Not an hour ago, Amos Potter was making the same kind of talk about the wrong ones and the right ones. It gives a man the feeling you're driving at something you're afraid to put into plain language."

Milo Jellick's shrug partly closed a door.

"I will listen to you. If I think an answer is justified, I will give it."

"You ever hear of Frank Gentile?"

"I have. He rode for Ruff Dubison. Whether he still does, I wouldn't know. What do you want him for?"

"Robbery and murder."

"Why then," said Milo Jellick simply, "I hope you get him. Which may be difficult, even if he is still with Dubison. There are a number of bad ones in the Sawbuck outfit. Dubison is hardly a gentle character himself."

"Interesting," Haskell said, his bruise smudged eyes taking on a speculative narrowing. "Yeah, interesting. Something worth looking into. Now how about a deputy named Jack Breeden? You ever hear of him?"

He was watching Milo Jellick with the finest of attention, and he saw that partly closed door shut fully. The storekeeper bustled around from behind his counter.

"I've my day's sweeping to do and I'd best get at it."

"But Jack Breeden carried the star," Haskell reminded with some heat. "You can't write a man like that off as you would some stray coyote."

Milo Jellick turned away. "I have said all that I am going to say."

Preparations Start for All-Star Game

By WICK TEMPLE

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas High School Coaches Association blows the whistle tomorrow on nine days of preparation for the fourth annual high school all-star football and basketball games.

An even 100 athletes arrive here for one day of introduction and banqueting and eight days of hard work under the blistering early Central.

The all-star basketball game is set for next Thursday night, Aug. 13. The football game will follow it next Saturday night.

The West holds a 2-1 lead in both games, but the East is given a good chance to even the score this year.

Two 6-6 stars, Jim Wilson of Cherry Valley and Bobby Anderson of Pine Bluff, head the East's cage hopes. Tommy Boyer, the 6-4 Fort Smith All-American, and Ken Saylors from Class B champion Pyatt head the West club.

Five star fullbacks give the East a punch in the football game. They are Daniel Dunston of West Memphis, Charles Killett of Helena, Ed Walton of Osceola, and Jim Holley of Little Rock Hall.

The West backfield will include All-American fullback Tommy Brasher of El Dorado and halfbacks Jimmy Worthington of Prescott and Danny Greenfield of Van Buren.

The games are the high points of the fourth annual AHSCA clinic, which is expected to draw more than 300 coaches from all over the state.

The AHSCA expects its biggest and best show this season. Attendance figures at the cage and grid games are expected to top last year's marks of about 1,800 and 10,000, respectively. The crop of athletes is one of the state's best, and a new rule says every one of the 100 stars must see action in the games.

The football teams each have 35 players. The basketball teams have 15. The teams will be divided into three platoons all of which must see action in the first half. In the second half, the backers Jimmy Worthington of Prescott and Danny Greenfield of Van Buren.
